Lord Derby makes some Significant Remarks.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—The mayor of Liverpool gave a banquet to the Earl of Derby to-night. Lord Derby in response to a toast expressed the opinion that the insurrectionary difficulty in Turkey had been exaggerated. He said the great powers were not disposed to aid the insurgents. It would be impolitic to concede self government to the Herzegovinians. Judicious reforms might alleviate the discontent, though a radical cure could not be expected.

He said no further intelligence had been received from Peking. Every one must deprecate war while honorably avoidable. It was necessary, however, to insist on just and moderate demands, and not shirk our duty because it was unpleasant. If trouble arose the fault would not be ours.

Spanish Affairs.

MADRID, Oct. 7.—It is reported the king has decided to join the northern army again. It is asserted Mr Cushing, American minister, has presented a note relating to the jurisdiction of courts martial over citizens of the United States in Cuba.

SCHURZ ON PHILLIPS.

The Rag Baby Spanked and put to Bed.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

[illegible], Oct. 8.—The following is the [illegible] letter [illegible] to Wendell Phillips, published in the New York Herald:

[illegible] Mr Phillips is known as an elegant writer, but the [illegible] of his letter is so flippantly offensive [illegible] personal attack [illegible]. Misrepresentation of [illegible] and facts distinguish [illegible] Mr Phillips [illegible] on the subject of finance [illegible] I will take [illegible] the four points of my speech which Mr Phillips [illegible]. Mark the [illegible]. They say it is in the banks. It might just as well for all purposes of money and currency be in the bottom of the Pacific, for it is not in circulation. It is no more money than so many corn stalks would be. To be money it must circulate as a medium for carrying on exchanges of the country. Then I proceed by quoting the fact that an overwhelming majority of the business transactions of the country are effected by transfer of bank accounts through checks, notes and bills of exchange; that in fact the circulation of money takes place mostly through the banks, to show the [illegible] nonsense of Governor Allen's statement. Mr Phillips tells us that he and Governor Allen were aware of these facts. If they were, could they still be guilty of so glaring an absurdity as that money in bank might just as well, for the purposes of money and currency, be in the bottom of the Pacific ocean, being not in circulation at all? Although I have never been an admirer of Mr Phillips' financial theories, yet I always considered him far less foolish than Governor Allen. If he insists on stepping down to Governor Allen's level, be it so. But there is something still more curious. Mr Phillips says the very fact that so large a proportion of the business transactions of the country are effected by means of checks, notes and bills, through the banks, is the cornerstone of their grave charges against our present system of finance. He argues that as checks, notes and bills of exchange are so performing the functions of currency, the banks are able at will to inflate and contract the currency, and he and his friends mean to break this aristocracy of money manufacture by introducing their system of greenback and inconvertible bonds, which he says will leave this power of inflation and contraction in the hands of the whole mass of business men. There is so much accumulation of absurdities in this proposition that I scarcely know where to begin and where to end in dissecting them. Who is it that draws checks and makes notes and bills of exchange? Who creates that kind of currency which consists in checks, notes and bills, and [illegible] causes that contraction and inflation of which Mr Phillips speaks? It is not done by the banks, but is done by the same whole mass of business men to whom Mr Phillips speaks of giving that power, as if they now were deprived of it. If the business men did not do it under our present system it would not be done at all. If he does not know these, the smallest clerk in a drygoods shop can give him some useful information on the subject. Can he be in earnest when he gives us to understand that he and his party want to dissolve this system? Does he really mean anything when he says we mean to have more greenbacks and less notes? Is he so utterly ignorant as not to know that checks, notes and bills of exchange, as they pass through the banks, constitute the very agency which, by almost infinitely increasing the efficiency of greenbacks or any other part of the currency, enable that currency to satisfy the requirements of business men, and that without this agency an immense number and variety of our business transactions could not be carried on at all? He wants to put in the place of a medium of effecting such gigantic transactions this system of greenbacks and inconvertible bonds, without those facilities which the genius of modern civilization has developed, and reduce the immeasurable [illegible] and endless variety of our business transactions to actual handing over from hand to hand of greenbacks. What is this but a return to the clumsy methods of barbarism? Or does he want to facilitate the business and sanction it with a system of inconvertible bonds? If so, how? As I understand the system, the inconvertible bond is to be given by government to those who deposit currency in the treasury, and are to be exchanged for currency at the option of the holder. Now is government to discount notes and sell bills of exchange and accommodate private business with that loans? Is that possible with his system of greenbacks and inconvertible bonds? Even if we multiplied our greenbacks ever so much it would produce so serious a contraction as to bring the business of the country to an almost absolute standstill. He says: suppose we double the real currency—meaning greenbacks—will that of itself necessarily increase prices, and especially the price of gold? And then he proceeds to quote Mr Carey to show that during the war the premium on gold went up or down irrespective of the quantity of currency issued during the war. He seems to ignore the first principles governing the value of an irredeemable currency consisting of government promises to pay, that their value will be affected by two things—the credit of the government issuing it, and the relation the volume of the currency bears to the requirements of the business of the country. What is it the credit of the government depends on? It is its honest intention to redeem its pledge and its present or prospective ability to do so. As to the latter, the vicissitudes of war produced from time to time [illegible] doubt. Every battle lost and every period of discouragement of operations raised the premium of gold, and every battle won lowered it, until finally the surrender of Lee and the end of the war brought it down at tremendous bounds, although the quantity of currency in circulation had not been diminished. France had an irredeemable money which became so plenty that a bushel [illegible] would not buy a potato. Russia and Austria both had experience with irredeemable paper demonstrating the same principles. I [illegible] in my speech that the emission of large quantities of irredeemable paper will promote extravagance and corruption. My historical reading as well as my own observation of things in this country [illegible] admitted by almost all respectable authorities on this subject. He says without irredeemable money England could not have conquered Napoleon; that paper notes fought the battle of Waterloo, and our late war is the same story. He is undoubtedly a splendid declaimer, but it does not seem to [illegible] whether it fought the battle of Waterloo or Gettysburg. The question is whether an emission of quantities of irredeemable paper currency will promote extravagance and corruption. By looking into the suspension period in England he will find that irredeemable paper may have fought the battle of Waterloo, but that [illegible]. It is the policy of spending money for the [illegible] Mr Phillips [illegible]

[illegible] he has given good advice [illegible] how mischievous such [illegible] appears from the fact [illegible] have been seduced into the support of the inflation policy which [illegible] to oppress the laboring man himself by robbing him of the fruit of his labor and the value of his savings by currency depreciation, and all this for the benefit of the gambler and speculator. But still greater mischief may be done by this [illegible] of such doctrines. They would have to shut up their shops [illegible] to escape from this [illegible] and look for some other place where people are still so old fashioned as to believe that two and two make four. Yours truly, C. SCHURZ.

A New Narrow Gauge Road.

SANTA CRUZ, Oct. 7.—The first trial trip of the Santa Cruz and Felton Narrow Gauge Railroad, which took place to-day, resulted very satisfactorily. As the engine passed up Pacific avenue a large and enthusiastic crowd thronged the streets, flags were up and general good cheer prevailed. It is looked upon as an enterprise of great importance to the place and to the lumbering interest at large, as it will be the means of developing a very extensive lumber trade and facilitating shipping interests to a large extent. At 10 o'clock this morning a train started for the terminus of the road. The party consisted of the president Mr Charles Silent, Superintendent B F Williams, the engineer corps (excepting the chief Mr Healey, who is absent and whose place was filled by the first assistant H B [illegible]) and invited guests. The hitherto secluded town of Felton, which is now converted into a railroad station, was made glorious over the event. At this place toasts were given to prominent characters connected with the enterprise, after which the party returned. From Felton the company's new flume extends twelve miles with its terminus about Boulder creek, at the head waters of San Lorenzo river.

OREGON

The country between Lafayette and Dayton is fast being cleared of its timber, and there will be some handsome farms in there ere long.

The young man James [illegible] attacked with small pox at Forest Grove is getting better. But one other person has been exposed and there is but little danger of the disease spreading.

R. W. Crane, while plowing his stubble near Cornelius, by accident let the fire reach his fence, and in the mean time had about 800 rails burned. Mr C. called upon some neighbors and the fire was extinguished without further damage.

On the 26th of last month in Tillamook county, three miles from the ship landing on [illegible] river, the dwelling house of Isaac W. Smith, while he and family were at church, was burned down with his household goods. Loss about $600.

A Corvallis letter says [illegible] grain still on [illegible] in the warehouse at this place and [illegible] there will be considerable more brought into market this week. However, there is very little selling at the present low rates.

The eldest child of Mr Wesley Cary of Dayton received a painful wound on Wednesday by falling against the edge of an axe, cutting a gash over the right eye nearly two inches in length and so deep that the flesh dropped down over the eye.

The Washington county Independent says: All of our farmers [illegible] busily engaged in plowing and sowing [illegible] fall wheat [illegible] there will be quite a large amount of fall wheat sown in this part of the country this season.

A [illegible] bushels.

At a recent meeting of the Philadelphian Society at McMinnville College the following officers were elected to serve the ensuing term: President, C. J. Magers; vice president, Miss Alice Hughes; treasurer, Miss Bertha Versteeg; secretary, C. M. Hill; assistant secretary, Miss Alice Handley; sergeant at arms, Milton Bryant; censor, Mrs L. L. Bailey; reporter, [illegible].

LINN COUNTY FAIR

ALBANY, Oct. 8, 1875.

The third day of the [illegible] fair opened favorably [illegible] in the day [illegible]. Late in the evening [illegible] the Grange [illegible] private exhibition [illegible] the pavilion [illegible] the labor of the ladies who have done much to add to the exhibits [illegible]. Mrs J F Backensto is credited with making the greatest number of entries, while Minnie Monteith and Mrs A N Arnold have contributed also. The fire trumpet, valued at [illegible], attracted much attention during the day. In the mechanical department but few additions were made yesterday.

STOCK

There is little or no change in this department. Mr Landrum will leave this morning for Salem, as also others who can conveniently take their stock away.

SHOOTING

On the second day was omitted, as also yesterday. No one seemed to know much about that sort of thing, and what is more no one cared.

MORE PEOPLE

Arrived by the trains at noon, and many farmers with their families settled themselves on the grounds with the intention of staying awhile at least.

THE AFTERNOON

Opened with an exhibition of carriage horses. But two entries were made, little interest being evinced in that direction. [illegible] first premium for best span of carriage horses, while J J Harris was awarded second premium.

[illegible]

The centre of attraction as usual was the race course. Some delay was occasioned on account of uncertainty as to entries. The first trot, best 2 in 3, at 2:30 P M, was announced as a trial between Linn county owned and [illegible] horses, purse $60, first horse $40, balance to second. Bill Gird entered iron gray filly Levina, a handsome animal out of Snow Flake by Vermont; J J Harris entered bay mare Rob Roy; Al Parrow entered gray mare Light Heels. These trotters have no record and not a great deal was expected from them. Levina won the two first heats, having gained the pole each time and leading the others throughout—Rob Roy each time coming in close behind, Light Heels never above four lengths in the rear. Time 3:42 and 3:40½. Levina got first money and Rob Roy second. Though the horses promised to take considerable time in making the circuit, yet they kept well together, Light Heels acting badly at times.

THE BIG TROT

Followed that just recorded. It was quite late, 3:30 P M, when the entries came on the course. This contest promised being best 3 in 5 to occupy considerable time in the day, and it did. J J Welch enters b h Blue Mountain Boy, H B Acker enters b h Eph Maynard, C E Barnes enters Capt Hogg, and Wm Birch b m Antelope. Only three of the entries appeared, viz: the Boy, Eph and Antelope, at the call. The two former came forward, Gird announcing that he would go against time, which the judges allowed. The others started—the Boy having the pole and keeping it with the lead throughout, Eph acting badly at many points. They came in pretty close, only five seconds intervening between the Boy and Eph—the former crossing in 2:36, and Eph in 2:41. Antelope was now brought to beat out the best time on her own hook—Bill Gird driving.

Little interest was taken in Antelope's doings beyond the time announced, which proved to be 2:40½, just enough to take the heat over the Boy, as awarded by the starter Frank Parton. This announcement brought forward Mr Acker, who claimed a protest against the heat being given to Antelope, as she did not take her chances according to the rules of the national association, and was therefore, although entered, not entitled to a claim in the race. Some strong language followed, and the secretary entered the protest of Mr Acker.

At the appointed time the Boy and Eph got off again, this being a much better heat, they keeping well together. They crossed in 2:44½ and 2:49. The Boy having the advance, Antelope came forward on her second trial, making the circuit in 2:45. Heat given to the Boy. Although the heat did not favor Antelope, except that it gave her an advantage of Eph in time, Mr Acker was disposed to speak out in plain language.

Third heat—Eph had the pole, which gave him a slight advantage to the end of the quarter pole, when the Boy drew ahead and kept so to within one hundred yards of the finish, when he broke, which gave Eph the advance, and taking the heat (as it stood then) by 2:47½, the Boy coming in in 2:49. But Antelope was there on the time trial, this circuit being made in 2:41, according to the time of the judges.

Maynard had the pole in the fourth start and kept the lead thereby, each horse doing bad work now and then. Eph came home in 2:48 and the Boy in 2:48½. Antelope's trial alone followed, the judge announcing the time 2:43—just enough to beat Eph's 2:48.

It was then given out that Antelope had won the race—Blue Mountain Boy second—to which Mr Acker in firm language dissented, and announced that he would go at the expiration of time of rest. The secretary remained, as also Mr Owens, one of the judges. Mr Acker came forward alone with Eph and announced that he would go at end of his allowed time, which he did, coming in with his pet Eph, as Mr Owens announced, in 2:46½ (though he [Acker] was not particular about the time), as he claimed the right to the first money, $150 of the $250. The decision is in abeyance, but it is clear Gird will get that $165, though the board is talking the matter over now. As there seems to be no show outside of Gird's favorites, parties from abroad are thoroughly disgusted and do not intend to put up and be deprived of a chance to win.

The fair is a failure in many respects, and many changes will occur in the programme to-day owing to this. Committees have been appointed to decide on the merits of various articles exhibited, and will proceed with the exhibits in the pavilion, thence to mechanical, stock, &c.

Crescent Fire Company were preparing to parade to the grounds this morning, and at 1 o'clock they will show themselves, though it seems to be [illegible]. Ex-chief W D Bruch [illegible] of Portland department [illegible] McCormick have been selected by [illegible] Joe Webber as judge, and [illegible] Hunt is referee, but their services will hardly be called for.

THE STATE FAIR

Afternoon Report.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

In the running race, best two in three, were three entries, but only two started—Girl's Belle Gird and Hughes' Buffalo Bill. Buffalo was distanced in the first heat and the race was given to Gird. Time 2:1[illegible]. Scrub races held well for the balance of the afternoon.

The Albany fire engine was on the ground and played. There were no [illegible] and the premium, a silver trumpet, awarded to it.

The fair has closed and everybody [illegible] ing to-night. The receipts were $1,10[illegible].

LETTER FROM SEATTLE.

SEATTLE, Oct. 4, 1875.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The Intelligencer published last week an advertisement and also printed a map of the city of Seattle for a company of gentlemen known as the "Seattle Homestead Association," which is deserving of more than a passing notice. The trustees are the following well known and prominent gentlemen of both this town and surrounding mill ports: W A Jennings, president; James McNaught, vice president; A Mackintosh, treasurer; J W Blanchard, secretary; and D Bagley, J W Edwards, Wm Renton, Alfred Snyder, John Leary, J M Coleman, Jno Collins. The stockholders are men of large capital and are [illegible] able to carry into effect the promises set forth in the prospectus of the association. This is the clearing and grading of a large portion of the property held by them, besides the building of a commodious hotel on Lake Washington. The site of the property is immediately back of this city, and runs along Lake Washington about a mile, while the western front is about one mile from tide water in front of Seattle. The lots to be disposed of number near three thousand, and are to be sold for $75 per lot. All dividends arising from the sales of extra locations, which are to be bid for above the maximum price per lot, will be divided equally among the purchasers of lots. The exceedingly rapid growth of Seattle, and the firm basis of future prosperity upon which she rests, will at once satisfy even the most skeptical of the safety of an investment of money in this property—the purchase money to be made in monthly installments of $10 per month without interest.

POSTOFFICE MATTERS.

The business of the postoffice here is rapidly increasing, and the amount of money orders drawn and paid is much larger than that of any other office in the territory. One thing which Seattle greatly needs—and which we shall doubtless have as soon as Hon O Jacobs goes to Washington—is the establishment of a daily mail between here and Tacoma. This would not only gain Seattle the mail facilities her business demands, but would afford the general public better and more regular means of travel.

WHARF EXTENSION.

The demand for coal is so great that the Seattle C & T Co. are building a wharf for the support of immense coal bunkers, beyond their present wharf. When no vessels are loading, a draw connecting the two wharves will be thrown across the slip between them, and the outside bunkers filled with coal. The connecting draw being withdrawn, vessels can load at both wharves, thus saving time both to the company and vessels.

SHIPPING.

The P M S S Co's steamship City of Panama reached this port at 4 o'clock on last Sunday afternoon, bringing forty passengers and a light freight. She went up to Tacoma last night, and has not yet returned. The Pacific sailed for San Francisco from here on last Thursday night with twenty tons of freight and a large passenger list. The ship Orpheus, loaded with Seattle coal, sailed for San Francisco on last Monday night. The bark Iva Williams arrived on last Tuesday to load with Seattle coal. The B H Meyer is nearly ready for sea, loaded with coal and lumber.

CITIZENS' MEETING

TYGH VALLEY, Oct. 2, 1875.

At a meeting of the citizens of Tygh precinct, Wasco county, Oregon, held at the Barlow gate school house, October 2, 1875, the following petition was circulated and signed by all present:

To the Honorable, the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled: Your petitioners, citizens of Oregon, respectfully ask your honorable body, in the event of the Northern Pacific Railroad Co making application for an extention of time in which to complete said road, to grant to actual settlers upon the odd sections within the limits of the land grant to said N P R R Co the same rights and privileges as the most favored settlers upon the even sections; and we further ask that all land comprised in the even sections within said railroad limits be disposed of to settlers upon the same under pre-emption and homestead acts as government land elsewhere.

It having been resolved that a committee of three be elected to [illegible] our representatives in congress, the following gentlemen were elected such committee: Benjamin McAtee, John Lind and James Parris.

Mr. D H Butler then offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

That a copy of the petition and the proceedings of this meeting be furnished the OREGONIAN and Mountaineer for publication, asking co-operation along the line.

The meeting then adjourned.

Enrolled Bills—Ringer, Abrams, Whitney

Indian Affairs—Hannah, Huntington, Cook

Fisheries—Foster, Lathus, Abrams, Grennell, Russell

Rules [illegible]—Whitney, Hodges, Russell, Karr, Harr

A memorial was presented by the Walla Walla delegation praying for a division of the eastern part of Walla Walla county and the organization of the new county of Ping.

Committee on printing reported that the secretary of the territory, in conformity with instructions [illegible] department, had made arrangements with C B Bagley & Co to do the necessary printing for the [illegible] as authorized by government. [illegible]

The committee on the matter of a chaplain reported that they had conferred with Revs. Messrs Wolf, [illegible], Hewitt, Fischer and Thompson, and all of the gentlemen were willing to officiate as chaplain to the house, and under the circumstances the committee suggested the propriety of accepting the services of each gentleman in turn, leaving the matter of compensation to be afterwards acted upon. Adopted.

Mr Sh[illegible] introduced H B No 1, being an act to organize the county of Ping as a division of Walla Walla county. The bill was referred to a select committee [illegible] the Walla Walla delegation after second reading.

Mr [illegible] H B No 2, [illegible] in relation to the disposal of lots in the city of Vancouver and proceeds thereof. Read twice and referred to committee on corporations.

Mr Sh[illegible] H B No 3, act in relation to the incorporation of the city of Walla Walla. Read twice and referred to same committee.

Mr Wood introduced H B No 4, amendatory of an act [illegible] notaries. Referred to the judiciary committee.

The hour having arrived as designated for the consideration of the governor's message, it was on motion [illegible] the house [illegible] committee of the whole, Mr Hodges taking the chair by request of the speaker. [illegible] message was distributed as follows: So much of the message as refers to the matter of immigration and territorial development was referred to special committee; finances to ways and means committee; commerce to committee on commerce and fisheries; penitentiary to judiciary committee; centennial to ways and means committee; deaf mutes, education and territorial university to committee on education; election and appointment of officers to committee on military affairs; revision of county laws to committee on counties, with instructions to report by bill; revision of general laws to committee on judiciary.

The matter of the insane asylum was made the special order for Thursday, 14th inst, at 11 A M, for the consideration of the reports of the contractor or resident physician and investigating committee.

The committee of the whole then rose and reported progress, and on motion the house adjourned to [illegible] P M.

House [illegible] to order at the hour named, and on motion adjourned until 10 A M to-morrow (Friday).

There was but little business transacted by the council to-day. Four hundred copies of the governor's message were ordered.

The following are the council standing committees:

Federal Relations—Hoover, Ping, Bradshaw
Judiciary—Hoover, Pickering, Bradshaw
Ways and Means—Ping, Sovey, Blinn

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES [illegible]

The Daily Oregonian.

SATURDAY MORNING OCTOBER 9 1875

IT WOULD BE IMPOLITIC

Statecraft is a wonderful sort of craft and for the most part incomprehensible to non professionals One can [illegible] stand Adam Smith or even Herbert Spencer and Sam Carey's science of creating wealth by transferring green and black pigment from highly finished types to highly finished paper is an intelligible exhibition of [illegible] But M[illegible] science can not be mastered by studying books It has no fixed principles [illegible] ultimate test but success The attitude of the great powers toward the [illegible] in Western Turkey is an illustration of the application of this [illegible] to the affairs of government The Herzegovinian insurgents show themselves able to cope with their oppressors to such an extent at least that the Porte acknowledges the inability of the government to carry on the war for any considerable length of time Should they succeed in gaining their independence they would be abundantly able to take care of themselves against any possible enemy except the Christian powers themselves quite as well able, at least, as several States now existing and that have existed for generations And yet for some inscrutable reason the great powers have from the beginning of the insurrection taken a lively interest in the matter on the side of the Turks who by every account are shown to have provoked the uprising by the most wanton and grievous acts of tyranny It has been apparent all along that England France and Russia were opposed to any adjustment of the difficulty on the basis of the freedom of the revolted districts from Turkish rule. But yet Lord Derby's speech Thursday night, at the banquet of the Mayor of Liverpool, can hardly be read without surprise." "It would be impolitic to concede self-government to Herzegovina Judicious reforms might alleviate the discontent though [illegible] expected

Here are a number of [illegible] European people crushed down by an Asiatic despotism, and striving to throw off the tyrant's yoke The wrongs of which they complain are confessed on all hands It is also conceded by Lord Derby that no reforms, however judicious could cure the discontent which exists among these people, and yet it would be "impolitic to concede" to them the right of self government. Why would it be impolitic? What valid objection could Great Britain have to these European people organizing themselves into an independent state? England, the full breadth of a continent away from the scene of the rebellion, for reasons of state policy, can not allow these people to free themselves from their oppressor and set up a government for themselves. Why not? Derby knows the rest of the world may speculate upon it, and the Herzegovinians may struggle along as best they can against their natural enemy, and against the moral power of all the nations that ought to be ready to give them any encouragement consistent with their own safety

THE FALL RIVER TROUBLES

For some time past we have had a good deal of the Fall River labor troubles by telegraph, and at one time it seemed that very serious results would follow the action of the employers in requiring the operatives to sign an agreement not to belong to or be influenced by the action of any labor union, as a condition of receiving employment again Whether this condition was a piece of wisdom on the part of the mill owners is a matter of doubt Labor unions are too firmly established to be shaken by an attack of that character The defense of the rioting of the operatives is also the sheerest demagoguery The "over production of cotton goods" is said to be at the bottom of this Fall River trouble According to the Financial Chronicle of New York which is generally accepted as the highest authority The total consumption in the United States of raw cotton in bales for each of the last six years ending with August, has been as follows

Year.	Bales.	Year	Bales
1870	930 [illegible]	1873	[illegible]
1871	1 018 [illegible]	1874	[illegible]
1872	1 13[illegible]	18[illegible]	[illegible]

It is the fashion with the [illegible] immensely to exaggerate the effects of the hard times yet we see that the quantity of cotton taken by the mills in 1875 was 95 per cent of the amount manufactured in the year ended with August, 1873, when the consuming power of the people, which is measured by their incomes, was at its maximum The fact that prices of cotton goods have greatly fallen is notorious and if this had not been the case it would [illegible] possible for the mills to have manufactured and sold as many goods as they have done Another effect of low prices in stimulating trade is seen in the increased exports of domestic cotton goods from the ports of New York and Boston to foreign countries These exports for nine months of the calendar year have been over [illegible] 000 packages from the two ports and they exceed by 10 000 packages the shipments of any previous corresponding period since the war The increase has taken place in spite of the very low prices at which cotton goods of English make have been offered in all foreign markets

It is certainly a disagreeable problem which manufacturers are [illegible] called upon to [illegible] their productions to a level with the [illegible] demand [illegible] producers [illegible] operatives [illegible] portion

WHEAT [illegible]

There are as yet no indications that the estimates heretofore made of the surplus wheat crop of Oregon this year [illegible] been too large but on the contrary the lowest estimates have been [illegible] farther out of the way than the highest Besides the heavy [illegible] of the harvest just closed there was much more carried over from last year than most people suppose Owing to a [illegible] construction which county assessors in many instances, heretofore have been in the habit of putting on the law defining their duties they have not assessed a man's wheat on hand In Marion county we learn that wheat has never been assessed until this year when it was found that over [illegible] 000 bushels were held in that county alone [illegible] The same [illegible] will [illegible] fully half [illegible] state which [illegible] the beginning [illegible] present surplus With [illegible] prices prevailing it is likely that [illegible] purchase [illegible] September 1st

The [illegible] names Carl Schurz as [illegible] last winter [illegible] The [illegible] is greatly at fault The [illegible] speech [illegible] last congress for hard money and [illegible] speech [illegible] was by Senator Schurz

During the past week in the circuit [illegible] for Yamhill county [illegible] charge [illegible] stealing was [illegible] by the grand jury [illegible] On Wednesday [illegible] went before the court [illegible] confessed to the charge and was sentenced to the state prison for two years Thomas Brown charged with larceny from the residence of [illegible] W Dunn [illegible] confessed to his guilt and received a sentence of [illegible] the penitentiary for two years The grand jury have reported two true bills against Jas Reed charged with rape and against James Reed charged with the crime of incest

CITY.

ANGORA.—Prof Carey, for many years a resident of this county, but of late living in San Francisco, will be at the State Fair with 300 Angora goats, out of a flock of about 1,000 with which he left Calaveras county, California, in July last, having sold the rest. He is often asked what Angora goats are good for, which question he answers by telling what he does with them. He sells the fleece for 75 cents to $1 a pound; he sells the pelts of half-breed goats for 50 cents each, and the pelts of those of higher grade for $2 50 apiece, and he makes the best of mutton of such as he desires to put to that use. We have tried the mutton and know it to be good. And we would add to Mr Carey's schedule of the uses of these animals that they are the best clearers of brush land that ever were introduced.

REWARD OFFERED.—Mr G A Cone Jr of Butteville, offers a reward of $300 for the arrest of James Whitney and Wm Whitney, who are supposed to have committed the crime of arson upon his (Cone's) premises on the 26th of September. A reward of $100 is offered by the citizens of Butteville and $250 by the State for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who committed the above offense. Description of James Whitney: Tall, rough featured, long neck, about 24 years of age, long nose, dark complexion, very little beard if any, a scar on side of his neck, hair very dark and straight, about six feet high. Wm. Whitney is about 16 years of age, rather ... a little squint eyed, about 5 feet four inches in height.

BRIEF NOTES.

Hebrew Day of Atonement.

Mails did not reach here last evening until a late hour.

Steamer Oriflamme will sail from San Francisco for Portland to-day.

An uncalled for message is at the W U T Co's office for Dan W Burch.

Several patent medicine men are now in the city, and they make things lively these evenings.

There will be a lunch at the room of the Young Men's Christian Association at 1 o'clock to-day.

A large number of divorce suits are on the docket to be disposed of at the coming term of the state circuit court.

"Town and Gown" is the subject of a lecture which will be delivered at Lee's chapel on next Tuesday evening by Rev R Bentley.

AMUSEMENTS.

Miss Fanny Marston, the young and handsome California prima donna, will arrive here this evening from the south. She proposes to give a series of concerts in Portland next week. An exchange, in speaking of Miss Marston, says "She excels in form, features and natural voice, either Jenny Lind, Parepa Rosa or any other foreign stars we ever heard."

A dispatch was received yesterday from Mrs F M Phelps by Mr J P Williams, stating that the boats failed to connect at Tacoma, and thus prevented the troupe from reaching the city last evening. Owing to the unexpected detention, the company will not arrive here until to-day. There will be no matinee this afternoon as announced, but a performance will be given in the evening. The programme will consist of "Miami," and "Slasher and Crasher."

NEW BOOKS.

The following list of new books have just been received and added to the Portland Library:

ANNUAL CONVOCATION

The business session of the convocation was held in Trinity Chapel at 10 A M October 8th, after morning prayer. There were present:

The Right Rev B Wistar Morris D D, the Rev Messrs Babcock, of Salem; Bonnell, of Seattle; Burton of Portland; Itter, of Portland; Fischer of Olympia; Hyland of Astoria; Nicholson of Vancouver; Rosenberg of Portland; Sellwood of Milwaukie; Sellwood of East Portland; Seward of Oregon City; Summers of McMinnville; Wells of Walla Walla and Wright of East Portland.

LAY DELEGATES.

Astoria, O ... Hall; Portland Trinity Church, Hon Matthew P Deady, J B Wilson, M D, and ... Clissan, M D; St. Stephen's Chapel, J A Habersham; Walla Walla, R M Chase; Seattle, Dr A Bagley; Oregon City, A J Kelly; Milwaukie, Thomas Sellwood; Salem, ... and ... Waller.

A majority of the clergy being present, the convocation was declared duly organized.

Rev John W Sellwood was unanimously elected secretary and Rev J H Babcock was appointed assistant secretary.

The bishop announced the following standing committees:

On Claims of Clergymen—Revs Rosenberg and Summers.

On Claims of Lay Delegates—Messrs Whalley and Bell.

On Incorporation of Parishes—Revs Bonnell and Burton and Hon M P Deady.

On the State of the Church—Revs Wells, Fischer, ... Hyland and Messrs Deady and Chase.

On Oregon Churchman—Revs Bonnell and Nicholson and Mr Habersham.

On Christian Education and Literature—Revs Babcock and Rosenberg and Messrs Deady and ...

The committee on lay delegates reported a list of delegates entitled to seats.

The committee on Christian education and literature presented their report, which was read and adopted.

The Committee on Christian Education and Literature respectfully report: They have been able to gather some statistics concerning schools which during the past year have been conducted by members of the church.

St Helens Hall. The sixth annual catalogue of this admirable school reports 11 teachers and 148 pupils, being an addition of 3 to the corps of instructors and of 15 to the number of pupils. Five were graduated, three of whom were from Oregon and two from Washington Territory. The library, which will hereafter be known as the Spencer Library, has received an addition of valuable works, and there is an invested fund for its increase, which will soon put the school in possession of a very choice collection of books and of the latest scientific apparatus. A collection in conchology has been begun. There is also an extensive herbarium containing most of the plants peculiar to eastern and western Oregon. The Hall seems indeed to have received during the past year a fair portion of the success which it so richly deserves, and to have been wisely conducted in such a way as to secure a continuance of the same. Whether this gratifying result may not be owing to the fact that during the absence of the rector the Hall has been managed by the women alone, whose right there was none to dispute, is a question which the committee do not feel competent to answer, but which they commend to the thoughtful consideration of all concerned. The present year begins with a larger number of pupils than ever before.

The Bishop Scott Grammar and Divinity School has had 30 boarding and 72 day pupils. Under the wise direction of the head master and the faithful assistance of the three other teachers, the boys have observed excellent deportment and made commendable progress in their studies. The school is now well equipped with all that is required to constitute a suitable institution for the right training of boys. It has large and comfortable rooms for study and recitations, for sleeping and eating, recreation and social intercourse. It possesses a good chemical and philosophical apparatus, a superior geological cabinet, a well selected library of 500 volumes, a large and well furnished gymnasium and a reading room supplied with the best papers, magazines and pictorial publications. It is vigilant in maintaining its present high standard in conduct and scholarship, will insure the liberal patronage which it merits.

In Astoria the school conducted still by the rector and his wife has had 34 pupils. Having been carried on for eleven years it has exerted an influence for good which is now felt in many parts of our field.

The school in Vancouver has had teacher and pupils.

In Walla Walla St Paul's Girls School has had a prosperous year. There were 63 pupils under the care of four teachers. A new building has been erected at a cost of $1,700. A further sum of $800 would give to this important institution a well furnished building for the better accomplishing of its work. Respectfully submitted,

JOHN H BABCOCK,
In behalf of the committee.

The treasurer presented his reports to the bishop, abstracts from which were read, showing the following balances: Of the episcopal fund, $104 45 in cash and $300 in notes. Of the indigent clergy fund, cash, $42 44; notes, $1,230 27. Of the endowment fund of Bishop Scott Grammar School, cash $350; notes, $7,228.

The following resolution, moved by Rev Mr Bonnell, was adopted:

Resolved, That this convocation recommend to the clergy and congregations of this missionary jurisdiction to use the first four petitions of the litany and the petition "Son of God we beseech Thee to hear us" together and not in the way of response.

Recess until 2 P M.

Afternoon Session.

Met at 2 o'clock.

The report of the standing committee was read by Rev Mr Burton, as follows:

PORTLAND, Oct 8, 1875.

To the Convocation of Oregon and Washington Mission:—The standing committee beg leave to report that at a meeting held in the city of Portland on the sixth day of March 1875, at which meeting there were present the Rev Geo Burton, Dr R H Wilson and Gen E Hamilton, the papers of Wm Lancaster McEwan and William M Barker, postulants for the sacred ministry were presented, and being found in due form said Wm L McEwan and Wm M Barker were recommended to the bishop to be admitted candidates for holy orders in the Church of God.

Respectfully submitted,
GEO BURTON,
For the Committee.

The secretary of convocation presented his report on the convocation fund, showing a balance on hand of $1 62.

On motion of Rev Mr Burton it was resolved:

WHEREAS, The Rev C R Bonnell, rector of Trinity church, Seattle, has invited this convocation to meet in and to be the guest of his parish at its next annual convocation, therefore be it

Resolved, That we do hereby express our sincere thanks to the Rev Mr Bonnell for his kind invitation, and do also beg leave to commend the matter to the bishop for consideration, to be accepted should he decide that step to be for the interest of the Church in this mission.

Rev Mr Bonnell made an interesting statement of his attendance as a missionary delegate at the general convention of 1874.

Revs Hyland and Burton gave information from a naval officer concerning the desire of the 10,000 Indians who reside in the United States between British Columbia and Sitka to receive the gospel and their promises to support a minister.

Adjourned till after morning prayer on Saturday.

EVENING SERVICES.

At 7 30 there was evening prayer in the church, the services being conducted by Revs Messrs Bonnell and Babcock, and a sermon was preached by Rev Mr Fischer.

Notice was given of morning prayer at 10 A M on Saturday and business meeting immediately after. At this meeting will be read the report of the committee on the state of the church and also that of the committee on the Oregon Churchman.

EXTRAORDINARY OPPORTUNITY FOR THE RELIEF OF THE AFFLICTED.

The Surgeons of the National Surgical Institute, Indianapolis, Indiana, ... Branch, 19 ... street San Francisco, have finally yielded to the many urgent appeals to visit Portland, Oregon, for the benefit of the people of Oregon and Washington Territory. Three or more of the surgeons will be at the Cosmopolitan Hotel, Portland, Oregon, on the 1st, 2d, 3d and 4th of November 1875.

They will have with them a great number of surgical appliances ... and competent assistants and workmen ... [illegible] ...

PLEASURE BOATS.

I have a number of Sail and Row Boats ready at any moment to let at reasonable charges. Boats made to order.

TIMID SIMS—A CALIFORNIA SKETCH

From [illegible] Bar

"Timid Sims," as he was called, was held in very inferior repute among the boys at Texas Bar because he had backed down before a six-shooter. A man on Texas Bar might be lacking in many qualities but if he had the sand, it covered a multitude of sins—"sand" was the popular translation for grit. Sand in a locality possessing but little law and less order was an absolute essential to a good standing in Texas Bar.

Timid Sims was a pale, slender, [illegible] dreamy character whose general aspect and manner gave you the impression that he didn't know exactly what he had come into the mines for; indeed, that he didn't know exactly what he came into existence for. He had a body to clothe, shelter and feed, and it was imperative that he should work to clothe, shelter and feed it. He was not strong enough to do an able-bodied man's work. No one would employ him even when hands were needed in the river claims during the busiest season, a circumstance which seemed to puzzle Sims exceedingly, until at last he was plainly told by one of the rougher and more outspoken miners that he "couldn't keep up his lick with other men anyway," and the best thing he could do was to go into a grocery store, tend bar or keep school.

Sims, however, would [illegible]. He borrowed a rocker, procured a very limited supply of flour, pork and potatoes on credit at the store, took possession of a deserted log cabin at the further end of the bar, patched up the roof with old boards which came floating down the river, and tried at night to sleep comfortably on the floor in his scanty blankets. He worked here and there along the bank, sometimes washing over old tailings, sometimes working some bit of a bar or riffle exposed during a low stage of the river, which since "49" had been dug over a score of times. He made "six bits," sometimes a dollar and a half per day, often nothing. His were reckoned Chinamen's wages. Taken altogether, poor Sims hardly passed for a whole man. It was not so much that he was feeble in body either, for there were others resident near him, able to lift no more pounds or swing a pick hour after hour with no more vigor than he, but there was about Sims an atmosphere of weakness and self depreciation. He was always shrinking into holes and corners. He had no "bluff," no self assertion. If he went into a room full of strangers, he seemed frightened at some imaginary thing. With a few he became intimate, and they called him a clever little fellow. To these he clung, and desired no more acquaintances. Every stranger he [illegible] to regard as an enemy. He was fond of solitude, and, during the summer, would neglect work altogether, wandering about the surrounding mountains.

Sims had one merit. He was an indefatigable prospector and at last struck gravel diggings on Bixel's Flat. Had he been smart he might have monopolized the entire lead. He contented himself with a modest slice at one end. Then down came the able bodied cutting and shooting men of Texas Bar. Jim Freemantle had worked a bank claim facing the Flat two years previously, without suspecting the diggings which existed an eighth of a mile back. No matter. On the plea of possessing a prior claim on Bixel's, he and his compeers argued that they had the right of "running the first boundary lines." Sims had already run his own, which included so far as he could judge by external indications, a fair slice of the lead supposed to exist underneath. This Freemantle & Co coveted. So they ran their lines, which clashed with those of Sims. Sims found Freemantle's notice posted in the heart of his claim. He expostulated with him. He renewed his own notices which had been torn down. These were again snatched off, and his boundary stakes kicked over. This was accompanied by a threat from the proprietors of the "Conquer we must" claim, that "any more of that sort of thing would lead to bullets." So Sims "took water," and was obliged to take up with a fragment of the ground he had discovered.

Wang Chu kept "china store" a little above Bixel's Flat. Wang Chu dealt principally in gin, salt fish, tea and opium. In his leisure hours he had constructed a boat for transporting parties of his countrymen, who from time to time in their migration about the country in search of diggings, might desire to cross the river. It was built after the Chinese style of marine architecture. It was cumbrous, heavy, lop sided, and unmanageable in the most quiet waters. One aim in its construction had been to use as much old lumber as possible. When Wang Chu had finished "the Ark," as the miners termed it, he painted two great eyes in the bows. Thereby he deemed he had made it a rational, living, seeing creature. When it was first set afloat there was a dedicatory burning of crackers, joss sticks, other pow-wowing, and an increased consumption by Wang Chu and his contemporaries of gin and opium. After this the ill-starred and ungainly craft floated in its crippled and lop sided fashion in a little bight of the river. Its passage over the Stanislaus at the lowest stage of water was accomplished by a vast amount of loud outcry and [illegible] gabbling on the part of Wang Chu and his crew, who mingled their frantic paddling, when in the heaviest current and stream, with an incessant vociferation of contradictory orders to each other. The result was generally a lodgement of the Ark a quarter of a mile below its starting point on the opposite side, and a suspension of all Wang Chu's other business until it was towed by hand against the current back again.

All the white men on the river were agreed on one point, that the "Ark" would drown somebody ere its mission was ended. On this being told Wang Chu, as an additional precaution he painted another eye in the stern, sacrificed a pig to some Mongolian marine deity, burnt more joss sticks and terminated the ceremonies with another outpouring of gin and opium.

In the summer time a California mountain river is an attenuated feeble stream that one may ford at every one hundred yards—an alternation of rivulets, motionless pools, bowlder-covered islands, and great granite bowlders rearing themselves high out of the waters. But when swollen by the long-continued rains of winter or the melting snows of the Sierras in the spring, its quiet, peaceful character vanishes; it becomes a turbulent, roaring, treacherous monster; it sets death traps in every direction. Here a whirling eddy, smooth enough on its surface, [illegible]ingly harmless, yet possessed of invisible arms, more powerful than those of the devil-fish, to suck and carry men down into its lowest depths; there a maelstrom raging and roaring over the rocks hidden beneath. During the freshet the banks quiver and tremble as the immense power whirls and foams past, and your voice is caught from your lips and hurled into indistinctness. From "'49" upwards every one of these mountain gold bearing streams has claimed a long list of victims, and many a brave fellow has been caught in their deadly embrace never to be seen afterwards.

The Stanislaus was "booming" one spring afternoon at its highest water mark, when five Chinamen encumbered with their blankets, bundles, rockers, jacks, pans and shovels came stringing down the Park Hill trail. They stopped and refreshed themselves for a time at the China store, and then accompanied by Wang Chu, placed themselves and baggage in his boat to be ferried over.

A quarter of a mile below their starting place was the Black Rock, a gigantic boulder which for centuries had pitted itself against the stream. It was not more than 100 yards from the shore, and the Stanislaus at this point was not more than double that distance in width. Here the waters suddenly narrowed to this compass betwixt Rocky walls, rushed rather in a succession of great waves or bursts than a regular current. This, in fact, was the upper outlet of the Big Canon, two miles in length, and the passage of the rocky walls and [illegible] could ever be successfully accomplished [illegible] at the most favorable season. Directly opposite the Black Rock on a little knoll was the cabin of Timid Sims. He, in company with a chance partner, was working on the bank near by.

Sims was always picking up the waifs, stragglers and castaways drifting about the country. His house and scanty larder were ever open to them. He took them as partners, trusted them as freely as though they had come burdened with trunks full of endorsements and testimonials of good character. Sometimes they robbed him, sometimes they got drunk and made his house a pandemonium; sometimes they effected the same result without the aid of whisky, by developing sour, surly, ferocious dispositions. The best of the lot carried the gross result in gold dust of a week's washing to Columbia for the purpose of turning it into coin, and after many days waiting therefor Sims received a letter from the delinquent, stating that he was overwhelmed with shame and remorse but he had given away to his besetting sin for gambling and the dust had all gone into the maw of the tiger. He had not proved an able workman either. His hand seemed never before to have grasped pick and shovel, and after a morning's gasping labor Sims would often insist that he should remain at home during the afternoon and make himself comfortable, for it was a sore distress to see a man panting and struggling with work to which it was very clear he was not used.

"Take a good lead of dirt to make a little gold," said [illegible] straggler. "When I was on the North Fork of the [illegible] I got six ounces out of [illegible] buckets. Them was the times, I tell you."

"Let's all [illegible]," said Sims. "Well, that's all the same, nothing, and we ain't [illegible] to any [illegible] either. I like a gold [illegible] for [illegible] thing. It pays you just the same whether you're Jew or Gentile, Catholic or Protestant, Republican or Democrat. I say, Jim, if those Chinamen start to cross the river in that old boat of Wang Chu's they'll [illegible]."

The boat had started and was gliding quickly in direct opposition to the course of the stream. For the immense mass of water rushing down and striking the rocks at the [illegible] directly back full 200 yards. [illegible] there were two smooth currents running up, between them a foaming, surging current rushing down. By taking advantage of these upward eddies a skillful boatman could land his craft on either side nearly opposite the point from which he had started.

Wang Chu and his passengers sailed smoothly along until the upper eddy being reached, the boat's head was turned into the [illegible] current. Then it seemed as if seized by a monster. It was whirled around like a top, shot for a second on the top of a great surge, and shot down again out of sight and under. There was a momentary glimpse of the five men paddling wildly and half rising from their seats; the next they were all gone. A hundred yards below, like a whale shooting out of water to blow, came the boat, bottom up, from the depths, and clinging to her was Wang Chu. It was dashed against the Black Rock and pressed under by the current. Wang Chu sprang on the rock. The rest were never seen. [illegible] the struggle like men in a dream. There before them was still the rushing, roaring stream, the [illegible], the birds singing—all going on, and through it all as though nothing was happening, or had happened, and in five seconds four human beings snatched from life to death.

But Wang Chu must be rescued. There was the poor, half submerged creature on the rock, the [illegible] current at times dashing clear over him and striving, as it were, to tear him from his hold, and between him and the shore the merciless stream, which could as easily sweep away a thousand men as one.

There he remained until near night. Gradually the population of Texas Bar and Bixel's Flat accumulated on the spot. All measures to float him a line by which he might be hauled on shore proved abortive.

"I'll swim off and take a line to him," at last said Sims.

"No, don't go," said some one among the crowd; "it's certain death."

"I will," said Sims.

"No you won't—not if I can help it," said Jim Freemantle. "You're wrong to try it, and if you do, we're going to stop you. We've as good a right to stop a man from committing suicide as murder."

There was a murmur of assent from the bystanders. Sims turned away and walked toward his cabin. When he emerged, it was with a cocked six-shooter in his hand. He came straight toward the group and spoke.

"You say you will stop me from swimming off to the Black Rock. I do not intend that you shall. You have succeeded in making my life thoroughly miserable on this Flat by injustice, taunt and abuse, and now that there's a chance for getting rid of it you want to stop me. You see you have made a mistake. You've put me up for a man without any grit. Well, I'm going to show you that courage runs in streaks and it takes different circumstances in different men to draw it out. I'm courageous enough now to own that I have backed down before some of your six-shooters, because I didn't think my life was worth your dirty little claim. But any of you would risk your lives in a dispute over a pack of cards, because you've got a fighting reputation to keep up at any cost, and you dare not live to be called coward by some hound who would pick your pocket had he a chance. Not one of you dared go to Tom Wilson's cabin when I nursed him through the small pox. Not one of you dared go a prospecting as I did on the head waters of the Owen's river and camp out for weeks, alone, fifty miles from the nearest settlement. And I'm not afraid of the river, savage as it looks, for the roar of its waters, as I've listened to them many a long night in my cabin, has been a kinder voice than any of yours, and if I drown, I want the Stanislaus to bury me somewhere deep down in its channel where your hands at least may never draw me out. Let me pass."

They made way for him. His face was white, hard, firm and desperate. He walked with a proud step like a king going to the scaffold. All the shrinking timidity, the baffled hesitation of former times had disappeared. It was another man who passed through the crowd, another being who had as it were suddenly risen up and usurped the body of Timid Sims.

"He's got the sand, by [illegible]," said Dick Ware.

Jim Freemantle walked hastily a little ahead of the rest. "Look here, Sims," said he, with a more kindly intonation in his voice than ever he had used in speaking to him before, "come back, boy—if you go in you're only goin' to get drowned for a Chinaman. 'Tisn't worth it anyhow—and—and we've made a mistake and you're grit; that's all. Here, take my hand."

Sims took the proffered hand. [illegible] for a moment. He [illegible] all with [illegible] detain him. "It's too late," said he, "I don't want your kind words now. [illegible] them. I stand above you all [illegible] this many a day. [illegible] you that I don't fear death. If I should turn back you'd say in less than a week I'd been playing a game of bluff. I always knew I had grit enough in me. It wanted only your scorn and that poor creature's extremity to bring it out."

He walked for a few yards further up the river bank, made one end of the light line he carried fast to a stake, divested himself of his upper clothing, and holding the other end of the warp, plunged in. It was all over in a moment. Down with race horse speed he was borne on the [illegible] toward the black [illegible] like a feather [illegible] was [illegible] eagerly grasped [illegible] hold of the black and polished boulder. The fearful current [illegible] him into the mouth of the [illegible]. [illegible] no one on Texas Bar after that [illegible] spoke of "Timid Sims."

Gold in New York 116[illegible]

In our local market there are but few features for comment. Monetary matters are gradually growing into a quieter if not a better condition and will soon be moving in the accustomed grooves. Though the banks are still following a conservative policy, the refusal of all commercial paper is not made, and loans upon moderate terms are easily negotiated, but there is only [illegible] [illegible]

The wheat [illegible] and hence the [illegible] from that source is not so pressing [illegible] at this season of the year and [illegible] [illegible] the opening of the banks in San Francisco is [illegible] the effect [illegible] should be [illegible] next week.

(Carminative)

For Diarrhœa and Dysentery use Dr. Jayne's Carminative Balsam. [illegible] changes of climate or water, and indiscretion in eating often produce these complaints. Travelers and others should always keep a bottle of this remedy by them. It never fails to subdue the most violent attacks, and it is equally serviceable for Cramps in the Stomach or Bowels, Griping Pains &c.

For Cholera Morbus, Cholera Infantum and Colic use Dr. Jayne's Carminative Balsam. It removes all soreness of the abdomen, allays the irritation and calms the action of the Stomach. It may always be relied on to give immediate relief, and besides being effectual, is a pleasant and safe remedy, easily administered to children.

For Asiatic Cholera and all Bowel Affections use promptly Jayne's Carminative B[illegible]. It checks the Diarrhœa, suppresses the Cramps which generally accompany attacks of Cholera,—and controls the disease in its incipiency. This has frequently been administered in neighborhoods where the Cholera has been raging epidemically, and has seldom failed to give immediate and permanent relief. The Carminative has maintained its reputation as a Curative for nearly forty years, is equally effective in all [illegible] and as a Standard Household Remedy, should be kept in every family.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effects of youthful follies or indiscretion will do well to avail themselves of this the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity. Dr. SPINNEY will guarantee to forfeit $500 for every case of seminal weakness or private disease of any kind or character which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice that you are treading upon treacherous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage; remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering on the last and are suffering some or all its ill effects, remember that if you persist in procrastination the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance, when the door of hope will be closed against you, when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the Doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill, or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave. Full course of treatment $25 00. Send money by Post Office order or Express with full description of the case. Call or address

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Con[illegible]

The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind and become household words among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured so wide a reputation or maintained it so long as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has been known to the public about forty years by a long continued series of marvellous cures that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of Coughs, Colds, Consumption that can be made by medical skill. Indeed the Cherry Pectoral has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects that is well founded if the remedy be taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY & COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely. Ayer's Hair Vigor, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately, often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray.
